

Department of Mathematics and Statistics Colloquium

One Year without Teaching

Minah Oh

James Madison University

Abstract: In this presentation, I will talk about what I did during my full-year educational leave. I will discuss new research projects and new collaborations that started during this time. New ideas to provide better undergraduate education and quality experience for undergraduate students at local conferences will also be presented along with outreach activities that I became involved in. The presentation including the research component will be fully understandable to undergraduate students.

Wednesday, January 29th at 3:30 pm in Moody 202

Please join us before, starting at 2:45 pm, for tea time in Roop 103!